Harbingers

"If a revelation is made to another sitting there, let the first be silent." (1 Corinthians 14:30)

As the old saying goes "God made man, because he liked to hear a story." Throughout human history, man has not failed in delivering these fascinating stories. One powerful and effective worldview and moral shaping story telling is in the form of myth making – where the fantastical meets the grounded human characterization. From Hesiod, Homer and other Greek poets and writers, these myths were expressed through literature, but in the modern era, myth making has transmuted and increased its vitality through visual representation of modern stories.

Excerpt written by Lec Cruz.

JASON MONTINOLA

Jason Montinola's multi-layered world filled with diverse characters opens a gateway into figuration and image making that are interrelated and interconnected and not mere one-off narratives. His visionary series fulfills our hunger for modern tales reflecting modern society while challenging the viewers to contemplate on the human conditions through introspection.
